Festival draws local and international films

Film festival judge Angela Carpenter is joined by festival film winners, David Spencer, Lois Langrebe, Derek Jones, Daniel Jones and Aaron Jones, during the Hibulb Cultural Centers 2nd Annual Film Festival, "Family: Through Our Eyes."

Family history, culture and traditions were the theme at the Second Annual Hibulb Cultural Center Film Festival 'Family: Through Our Eyes,' held on Saturday, September 20. In attendance were a handful of Tulalip directors, producers and actors to screen a dozen films submitted from across the country and internationally.

The festival included two mini workshops, exploring pre-production for filmmaking and screenwriting, taught by Tulalip filmmakers Derek Jones and Aaron Jones. Film audiences were able to screen more than a dozen films that included documentaries, music videos, short films and full-length features.

"I was pretty excited. I thought it was going to be my big starring debut. I didn't know the role until after I had agreed. My role was to be a deceased grandmother," said Tulalip actress Lois Langrebe, during the awards ceremony where

Myths and facts: a candid conversation about beda?chelh

By Niki Cleary

Although it translates to, "Our Children" the word beda?chelh has become almost a boogeyman for parents. Rather than being a hopeful reminder that the staff are ensuring our children are safe, the name is often accompanied by caution and sometimes fear, 'be careful, or beda?chelh will take your kids.' Interim beda?chelh Manager Donna Furchert hopes to change that perception.

It's tough, she explained, tough to balance the safety of children with the health of families, especially without consistent vision, leadership or staff.

"From 2006 to 2013 we've had 12 different managers," Furchert explained. During the same time frame, 15 caseworkers left the department. Furchert attributes the high turnover to the stress of the job. Recent guidance from Tulalip leaders is helping.

"The children of Tulalip really are our most valuable resource," she continued. "I think we've definitely embraced that idea. Misty [Napeahi, Tribal Government Interim General Manager] and Dr. [Stephanie] Fryberg brought our program the community lens perspective. When there is a conflict, we try to step back and take the community’s view of the situation.”

According to Furchert, the perception that staff members are biased is ever present, and sometimes deserved.

“I equate it back to that boarding school mentality,” she explained. “People thought they were working in the best interest of the kids. We had that opinion in our own heads that someone was being unbiased.”

With new leadership, Furchert has come to realize that bias isn’t always that easy to spot.

“We had Dr. Fryberg sit in on our staffings and demonstrate how bias was influencing our decisions and how to take bias out of our decisions,” Furchert said. “We need to be able to call it out and say, I understand that’s your opinion, but what are the facts? Do we have it in writing, what are your active efforts to reach the family? Sitting at your desk and calling is not considered an active effort.”

At the end of the day, Furchert said, all the departments’ efforts are aimed at keeping children safe and that really does take a team.

“Trust and the group being willing to buy into the idea that we have to change, that’s why I think we’re seeing the change in numbers that we’re seeing now,” said Furchert. “You have to be able to trust the person who is leading you. Our team is not about me, or Misty, our team is about all of us.

Myths and statistics

Myth 1: Beda?chelh takes your kids away.

“We make recommendations about children, not decisions,” Furchert stated. “The court makes the decision. However, we recognize that our recommendations can have a life-long impact on the family. Before a decision is made, our recommendation goes through two filters, the Reservation Attorney’s Office and the Judges.”

Myth 2: All the case managers at beda?chelh are non-Native.

“Out of the new hires three are native, two are tribal parents,” said Furchert. Furchert herself is a citizen of the Navajo Nation.

Myth 3: If you end up in the beda?chelh system, you never get out.

“[This year] We have 37 that closed out to a relative,” said Furchert. “Sixteen kids went back home to both parents, 19 went to their mother only and two went to their father only. Five children aged out, meaning they turned 18 and were closed out of the system.”

Myth 4: All the kids in the beda?chelh system are placed off-reservation with non-native families.

“We closed out 37 cases to guardianship (permanent placement),” said Furchert. “Twenty-nine of those went into relative placement, six went into foster care and two went to fictive kin (someone seen as family by the community, but not blood related).”

about 60% are off reservation, but that doesn’t mean they aren’t connected to the tribe.

“We looked at how many are in-home with mom and dad, 17.9% of kids are in-home dependency,” said Furchert. September’s department statistics show that 63 children are placed on reservation and 90 are placed off reservation. Of those 27 in-home dependency, 69 live with relatives, 79 live with a tribal, non-relative, 15 live with a non-tribal, non-relative, only 18 are in State Foster Care, one is classified as a runaway, one is in independent living and five are living in a care facility.

Myth 5: All the kids in the system were sexually abused.

“Since January, we’ve picked up 19 children, the reasons given were: 14 drug related allegations, four neglect allegations, one physical abuse allegation and zero sexual abuse allegations.”

A world without beda?chelh

For Furchert, beda?chelh is a personal passion as well as a job, “I’m a guardian of three Tulalip children,” she explained. “I grew up in New Mexico on my reservation. I was a product of rape, so my grandmother is the one who actually raised me. My grandmother was blind, poor and lived in a two-room shack.”

Now, she is a successful social worker with a BA in psychology with a Masters in Health Administration, but that background still helps her see the community and parent’s perspective when the department makes recommendations.

“It’s kind of funny,” she said. “No one would have placed me with my grandmother. She was too old, handicapped, too poor, they wouldn’t have done it. Had I not experienced that love, I may not have overcome those obstacles of poverty and addiction.

“I push my teams to look at those protective factors,” Furchert continued. “So mom is an addict. Does she use with the child? No, she drops the child off with grandma. That’s a protective factor. Is she making sure her children are safe? That’s what we’re in the business for;

we’re not here to be judging people’s lives. It’s about child safety.”

Hopefully, Furchert said, in the future there won’t be a need for beda?chelh.

“Child abuse is a bucket overflowing with referrals,” described Furchert. “If one person stops the cycle, if each person can take away one drop, eventually it will stop overflowing and one day we’ll be out of a job.”

Terminology of beda?chelh

Beda?chelh uses a lot of terms that are unfamiliar to the general public. Below are a few of the commonly-used terms, in plain language. Along with brief explanations of what they mean in practice.

CPS (Child Protective Services) allegation - Usually go through the State and are reports of child safety concerns. CPS allegations include a screen in and screen out process. There has to be an adult named. Child on child can be screened out or if it’s severe can be a law enforcement issue.

Guardianship - You are for basically the legal parent/guardian. If you are not a blood-relative, you have to wait a year to petition for guardianship. A petition doesn’t mean you will be automatically granted guardianship.

In-home dependency - A child residing that is still a tribal depending, but living with either both or either parent.

Intervener - (See Party to a Case) Whereas a mother or father automatically become a Party to a Case, an intervener is a person who motions to become a Party to a Case because of their relationship to the child.

Judicially Blocked Account (also known as beda?chelh trust accounts) - Half of a Tulalip minor’s per-capita may be distributed rather than going into the Minor’s Per-capita Trust Account. When a child becomes a Youth in Need of Care, that half goes into a judicially blocked account. The placement or the child may request a draw of funds from that account. The court approves, modifies or declines it the request. At the close of the case any money left in the judicially blocked account automatically rolls into the child’s Minor’s Per-capita Trust Account.

Malicious Reporting - False reports generated, sometimes in custody battles or other family disputes. Malicious Reporting goes through the state, there is an RCW regarding malicious reporting. When the State and/or beda?chelh feel it’s a malicious report, a letter is generated. The report is removed from the State database.

Party to a Case - A person, typically the mother, father or a close relative, who has the privileged to be able to get the court reports. A Party to a Case can make motions to the court in regards to a child. Someone who is not a close relative can petition to become a Party to a Case (see also, Intervener)

Placement - Where the child will reside or be domiciled. A placement has no legal rights over the child. This includes medical procedures like surgeries and circumcisions or piercing of the ears. Beda?chelh tries gather input from the family about preferences regarding the child’s hair and body.

Youth in Need of Care - A tribally-dependent child. Ultimately the court decides whether a child will become a Youth in Need of Care.

Inside the world of Native American Masks

By Roger Vater, Digital Media Coordinator, Communications Dept.

During the week of Oct 13 - 19 on Tulalip TV, Channel 99 on Tulalip Broadband or streaming live on <http://www.tulalip.tv>/ you can watch the documentary "The Spirit of the Mask" at 10:30 a.m., 10:00 p.m. and 4:30 a.m.

Today, we in modern society have little outlet for our myths, our dreams. Yet, in our increasingly computerized world, there is a growing hunger for the security that ritual once provided: a stability that was based in part on a close alignment between humans and the earth. This spiritual relationship is embodied in the masks of the Indian peoples on the Northwest coast of Canada.

"The Spirit of the Mask" takes us on a journey of self-discovery. From our own pagan beginnings through the dramatic mask ceremonies of the Northwest Coast Indians, to new-age healing, we will develop a better understanding of the power of the mask; the spiritual and psychological processes that may heal an individual and give greater insight into the natural and supernatural worlds around us.

Featuring dramatic, rarely seen ceremonies as well as interviews with native spiritual leaders, the film traces the meaning of native art and the effects of government policies, which saw the banning of mask ceremonies. The video raises issues about the therapeutic value of native ceremonies and the housing of cultural objects in museums.

You can watch "Spirit of the Mask" and many other Native programs on Tulalip TV, Channel 99 on Tulalip Broadband or streaming live on <http://www.tulalip.tv> on a PC, Mac or any 'Smart' device such as phone or tablet.

Tulalip Tribal Police Services Narcotic Emphasis Update

Year to Date: January 1, 2014 – September 2014

Submitted by Carlos Echevarria, Tulalip Chief of Police

The Tulalip Police Department (TPD) has primary law enforcement jurisdiction of all persons and activities on the Tulalip Indian Reservation and the Consolidated Borough of Quil Ceda Village. The Tulalip Indian Reservation is located 50 miles north of Seattle along the Interstate-5 corridor in the Pacific Northwest. The reservation consists of approximately 22,000 acres, of which is both tribal and fee simple land. There are approximately 15,000 persons residing on the reservation, 2500 are tribal members or other Indians.

The TPD was formed in 2001 as a result of retrocession and has grown into a police department employing roughly 50 personnel to include non-commissioned team members. TPD currently has 26 commissioned officers with Washington State general peace officer authority including TPD Fish & Wildlife Enforcement. The Consolidated Borough of Quil Ceda Village is a 2000 acre tribal municipality on the reservation butting up against the I-5 corridor consisting of both tribal and non-tribal business. The larger tenants located within Quil Ceda Village include the Tulalip Resort Casino & Hotel, Tulalip Bingo, Seattle Premium Outlet Center (120 Stores), Wal-Mart, and Home Depot. Up to 75,000 guests visit the Tulalip Resort Casino and other businesses within the Quil Ceda Village daily. The transient population provides economic development for the Tulalip Tribes as well as a variety of challenges for TPD. Quil Ceda Village accounts for approximately 45 percent of the total calls for service with theft/shoplifting being the primary call for law enforcement service within Quil Ceda Village.

Chief of Police Carlos Echevarria in addition to all team members of Tulalip Tribal Police Services is fully committed to taking a zero tolerance approach on persons who attempt to sell narcotics within the boundaries of the Tulalip Reservation. For year 2013 TPD conducted six residential search warrants and over 20 vehicle specific search warrants. And for 2014 with three months remaining in the year TPD has executed 10 residential search warrants and 16 vehicle specific search warrants. TPD has arrested three high level heroin dealers on the reservation in possession of five-plus ounces of heroin, firearms, as well as possession of other narcotics. On a national level statistically, Department of Justice states violent crime is decreasing, but violent physical assaults against law enforcement officers by persons armed with a firearm(s) is increasing. Here at Tulalip we are seeing a similar trend as the persons we contact are often times armed with firearms and or other weapons and TPD statistics shows the trend with 17 seized firearms in 2013 and 37 seized year to date 2014.

TPD has recently hired nine entry level officers and they will graduate from the police academy early 2015 bringing TPD back to minimum staffing levels. The new team members will provide much needed support once they complete the required field training program as well as much needed assistance to the overall function of the TPD.

As your Chief of Police, I am committed to crime prevention and the eradication of narcotics throughout our Tribal communities. We will continue to work hard in an effort to make Tulalip a safe place for persons to live, visit, vacation, and play during their stay.

I have an open door policy and community members may stop by the police department or reach me by phone (360-716-4608) even to say hello.

Steven Jones, Jr. honored at potluck

Submitted by Malory Simpson & Together We're Better Crew
At August's Together We're Better Community Potluck, we honored Steven Jones, Jr. for his passion and dedication in working for our seniors and elders. Steven has spent most of his life doing as much as he can to ensure our elders are taken care of and that our teachings are passed down to the next generation, and does this with a humble heart. We are grateful for his leadership and we raise our hands to him with love and respect! Thank you Steven, for all you do!

"DEDICATED TO THE TULALIP ELDERS /SENIORS"
"ELDERLY LOVE"

To live is to live to die is to die
When we loose an Elder we all have to cry
We need our Elders so we can learn
Why do they die it's not their turn
I love the people from Native Lands
If an Elder needs my help I have lending hands
Helping Elders is a beautiful part of life
Do it when you live because you don't live twice
An Elder is as beautiful as an Eagle in the sky
When they are gone we never have time to say good-bye
I would love to help and learn from Elders
Like how we got here before the settlers
Some Elders say how they lived off the land
And that's something that people don't understand
I will always love to listen to stories from you
And that's something that people don't understand
I will always love to listen to stories from you
And try to remember so I can tell my children too
When I become an Elder I want to be respected
And have family so I can be protected
So I will always Love my people like you
And always Love and Respect them too
At the end of a rainbow you find lovely things
Like elders waiting with songs to sing
The rainbow has many colors in line
Like the Eagle being a very good sign
Elders have songs and stories to be told
You are wise and still shine like gold
Many time I've heard beautiful stories from you
May we have good times and live life all the way through
Help an Elder when you get the chance
Elders are strong like the roots form a plant
So when you see a rainbow it shines on you
You are now like the Eagle that has always flew
Now I have to go and help my Elders out
So help and Elder and take the good route

Article and photos by Brandi N. Montreuil

The curse of the Eagles struck the Tulalip Lady Hawks again in last night's game against Grace Academy Eagles, 0-3, played at Heritage High School.

Both teams stepped on the court looking to take a win after both teams experienced crushing losses in their season openers, but Lady Hawks lack of communication, which has plagued the team since the start, enabled the Eagles easily take the lead.

The Lady Hawks came together in the second match to score 17 points but couldn't hang on to turn the tide.

Heritage Lady Hawks continue their losing streak in a game against Providence Classical Christian Highlanders, 0-3. The game was played at Tulalip Heritage High School, due to the Highlanders lack of gymnasium facilities on Wednesday, September 24.

This is the Lady Hawks third consecutive loss in the season, which enabled the Highlanders to climb to the number one spot in the varsity volleyball standings, knocking established Lopez Island Lobos into second place.

Lady Hawks will next play Concrete Lions on Monday, September 29, at 6:30 p.m. at Concrete High School.

Legacy of Healing Advocacy Center & Safe House services

Submitted by Roxanne Chinook

Crisis Intervention: In-person crisis intervention, emotional support and guidance contacts provided by the program's staff. This type of emergency response may occur at the crisis scene or immediately after the crisis. Meeting the survivor at the hospital is also included. Includes phone calls made to the program's crisis phone line by or on the behalf of a survivor of domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking. These calls are usually the initial crisis phone contact with a survivor.

Advocacy Program: Legacy of Healing Advocacy Center provides legal and civil advocacy services such as preparation for restraining orders and court advocacy, provides assistance to those individuals: Custody & Dissolutions Petitions, Temporary Restraining Orders and also accompanies petitioners to Tribal Court before, during and after their hearing.

Safe House: The Legacy of Healing Safe House offers emergency housing in a safe and secure facility for tribal members or a parent, spouse or significant other of a tribal member and their children, or member of another federally recognized tribe with priority given to those living within the Tulalip reservation boundaries, or other victims (on a case by case basis) who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault and stalking. Safe House beds are provided for women and their children, as well as therapy, support groups and advocacy. The Safe House will provide security and comprehensive support services to all women and children staying at the Safe House. We will be encouraging privacy and peace for healing from intimate partner abuse. Our Safe House has five bedrooms, one community living room, shared kitchen and dining area, and a children's playroom. Adult therapeutic arts and traditional arts and crafts will be offered, as well as a Resource Room. Emergency shelter stays are typically 30-90 days. It is a place of empowerment, hope and a journey towards healing.

Transitional Housing Services: The Transitional Housing Services include advocacy and direct assistance to victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking and their children to achieve and maintain self-sufficiency. Transitional Housing Services are specifically designed for women who are out of their abusive relationship.

Women/Domestic Violence Support Group and Therapy: One-on-one in-person therapy and we will soon be offering a Legacy of Healing Support Group and a Safe House Support Group, by qualified program's staff for survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking. Domestic Violence therapy best practice does not include couple's/marriage counseling, mediation, and/or family counseling. Nor does it involve any of the survivors/child witnesses in confronting the offender, or which includes the offender. The Safe House has a Women's Healing Arts Room; a place for survivors to create by using art therapeutically.

Education & Outreach Services: Community education and outreach is defined as increasing the awareness and knowledge of the Legacy of Healing Advocacy Center & Safe House purpose, programs and functions, in addition, to coordinating and offering trainings for the Tulalip community at large, human service providers, tribal law and order, first responders, schools, and others who may interact with those impacted by domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking. We will soon be offering a required 30-hour Safe House staff and volunteer training program.
