Through the commitment and guidance of several Tulalip tribal members, led by Natasha Fryberg, the Tulalip Tribes has its very own youth canoe club. They've been practicing three times a week, rain or shine, since April. With a consistent turnout of kids and their dedicated parents, the canoe club has established itself as a safe and fun

Tulalip Tribes Vision

We gathered at Tulalip are one people.
We govern ourselves.
We will arrive at a time when each and every person has become most capable.
Together we create a healthy and culturally vibrant community

Tulalip Tribes Mission

We make available training, teaching and advice, both spiritual and practical.

Tulalip Tribes Values

1. We respect the community of our elders past and present, and pay attention to their good words.
2. We uphold and follow the teachings that come from our ancestors.
3. It is valued work to uphold and serve our people.
4. We work hard and always do our best.
5. We show respect to every individual.
6. We strengthen our people so that they may walk a good walk.
7. We do not gossip, we speak the truth.

and Clallam Counties. This county with breathtaking views almost everywhere you look is in danger of jeopardizing its greatest tourist attraction: it's natural resources.

Westway Terminal is seeking to build and operate oil terminals in Grays Harbor. The company wants to bring in large amounts of oil via train, store it on the shoreline, and ship it out of the harbor in tanker vessels. Westway is the third company attempting to bring crude oil business into the Grays Harbor community in recent years. Imperium Terminal Services and Grays Harbor Rail Terminal have both attempted and failed largely due to community opposition. Westway argues that the company will create thousands of job opportunities in a community that is economically struggling, and that Washington State has one of the best oil spill prevention and response teams in the country, so if a spill were to ever occur, the damage would be significantly less than other states.

Grays Harbor recognizes the point the company is trying to make and although some citizens find the possibility of an economic boost appealing, the majority of Grays Harbor feel the risk is greater than the reward. The Quinalt Indian Nation (QIN) is the most prominent among the many active voices in the community regarding this issue.

QIN hosted a march and rally in the city of Hoquiam on Friday July 8, protesting crude oil in Grays Harbor County. Hundreds of tribal and community members united in an effort to save the county from Westway's purposed oil terminals. The rally began when traditional canoes docked at the Hoquiam River. Once everybody was ashore the protesters, with banners raised high, marched onto Hoquiam City Hall.

“Our ancestors gave up so much when signing the treaties. They worked to ensure that our generation, and we are the seventh generation since the Quinalt Nation signed our treaty in the 1800's, would be secured by treaty rights.

This generation is standing up for our treaty rights to ensure that our natural resources are preserved for the next seven generations to come,” stated QIN President, Fawn Sharp, as the large crowd began to chant “No crude oil!”

President Sharp commissioned an economic study in regards to what would happen to the community if the county approves the oil terminals. The study found that in the case of an oil spill, approximately 10,000 jobs would be threatened including 700 tribal fisherman, 400 non-tribal fisherman, and over 4,000 tourism based jobs. According to the study, more jobs would be lost in the community in the event of a spill than the jobs that would be created by approving Westway’s move to the harbor. Not to mention the damage a spill would cause the environment.

Sharp stated, “We are at a critical place in Grays Harbor. A decision is going to be made soon. The future of this harbor is going to go in one direction or the other. We need it to go in the direction of no crude oil forever!”

Several community leaders gave testimonies opposing Westway at Hoquiam City

Hall that afternoon. Tribal leaders from Lummi, Neah Bay, and Quileute were in attendance to show support for Quinalt. With the majority of the community on the same page, the proposed oil terminal seems to be facing a losing battle. The QIN’s effort to preserve its natural resources for its future tribal members is a battle that the Nation is always prepared for. The protection of treaty rights is a fight that all tribes throughout Native America are familiar with, and when tribes stand together is when we are strongest. No crude oil!

Club kids add color to latest Hibulb exhibit

Article/photos by Micheal Rios

On Monday, July 11, a group of kids from the Tulalip Boys & Girls Club were invited to contribute to the latest exhibit at the Hibulb Cultural Center. The group of 20 kids got to tour Hibulb, check out the still in development Vibrant Beauty exhibit, and then were treated to a Ty Juvinel story time.

“The Hibulb Cultural Center is closed on Mondays, so the staff there have invited us to bring in a group of kids every Monday during the summer,” says Diane Prouty, Office Manager of the Tulalip Boys & Girls Club. “So every Monday during summer camp we pick 20 different kids to tour Hibulb and participate in a creative activity. It’s a great opportunity for the kids to explore and learn something new.

“Some of our kids are new to the Boys & Girls Club and aren’t Native American. These kids have never been to Hibulb, they’ve never experienced it. By taking them to Hibulb they get to experience the beauty, see the artwork, and learn about Tulalip culture. I want all our kids to have that opportunity.”

After a guided tour of the cultural center, the kids got to hear Ty Juvinel tell three of his original stories. The first story was Mouse and the Mountain, which is about perseverance and not underestimating anyone’s potential. Next up, How Puppy Got His Ears conveys the importance of listening to your parents. Lastly, How Hummingbird and Butterfly Painted All the Flowers expresses the significance of teamwork and cooperation.

“The kids sat very glued and listened to every word he said. They were really good and very respectful,” describes Diane.

Following story time, the kids had the opportunity to contribute to a very unique piece of artwork that will be on display when the Vibrant Beauty exhibit opens Saturday, July 16. The kids were given a canvas to leave their unique handprint on. Assisted by Ty and Mary Jane Topash, Hibulb Group Tours Specialist, the kids took turns dipping their right hand into their choice of colored paint, then leaving their brightly colored hand print on the canvas. The kids’ artwork adds just another piece of vibrant beauty to the Hibulb collection.

June 1, Tulalip Tribes Business Committee Meeting

By Theresa Sheldon

June is one of the most positive months because it’s the one time of year that parents and students show off their academic brilliance. Congratulations to our graduates of 2016. An elder once said that for each tribal member who obtains a degree or high school diploma that means our tribe obtains another degree. The success of one is the success of us all. Students please keep up the great work and keep sharing your positive posts on social media regarding your achievements. We are so proud of your dedication and determination.

I do apologize for missing our graduation banquet as I was at the White House’s summit on United States of Women. I love seeing our graduates, be it from Montessori to 5th grade, high school, college or beyond. Each step should be celebrated. It would be a lot of fun to have quarterly ceremony’s honoring our student’s successful grades and near perfect attendance.

Business Committee Day started with Kimberley Ordin, Natural Resource Attorney sharing that she will be retiring in December. She has served our tribe for over 30 years, during a time when there were very few women fighting for our fish and waters. We extend a heartfelt thank you. Words cannot express enough of our gratitude and appreciation for all the years you fought for us. May your next journey be absolutely amazing!

Public Works

We’re thankful for Gus Taylor and his hard working crew who make these projects happen. Mission Beach Heights Road Construction will begin this summer. This project is aimed at stopping the erosion that’s happening on the bluff. This will include storm drainage, improvements to water mains, site preparation, grading, compacting and placement of gravel and asphalt pavements and driveway restorations. Thank you to Debbie Bray for working so diligently on the IRR BIA Roads.

deteriorated greatly. The project will begin this summer. The focus is on storm water drainage improvements, site preparation, and removal of existing asphalt paving, removal and replacement of cement concrete curbs, gutters and sidewalks including ramps and grading to improve traffic control and drive way restoration. Replacing a section of the waterline on 19th avenue & Marine Drive. It will replace an 8" water line approximately 300 feet long.

Main Lift Station at our Tulalip Sewer Plant needs to be replaced. The Main Lift Station has been in place since 1973 and is in dire need to be upgraded. Construction will begin once Indian Health Services (IHS) confirms funding. Construction may begin this summer if all goes well.

Housing

Housing Department will be building parks for Mission Highlands 1, 2, & 3. The funding will come from Tax Credit Developer fees. If you have seen the completed parks in the two housing developments (Y-Site & Battle Creek) they are great and being utilized by all age groups. It's exciting to see so many kids outside again.

The Tulalip Housing department currently houses 837 tribal citizens in their low rent (106 units), HUD (25), tax credit (116), and mutual help (45). The income levels for the majority of our homes are created by the federal programs they were created by. Meaning as Tulalip citizen's income increases, we may have a hard time meeting low income criteria. This is why the housing shift has to occur and create more home ownership abilities. The Tulalip Bay Home project was originally planned to build over 100 homes for tribal home ownership. Unfortunately this program was stalled and only a dozen homes have been built. The hope is to get this program built back up and moving full steam ahead so our tribal citizens have the ability to purchase homes at reasonable prices.

Another focus for families is to build beautiful condos for those who need to build up their credit to purchase a home. To have a fluent housing market we need multiple kinds of homes. Having reasonable priced apartments and condos for young families who are growing their careers will help empower our tribal citizens and tiny homes for those who may be single and not yet having children. We need to diversify our housing options and build energy efficient, with solar power and go green. I'm thankful that our Housing team carries this belief as well.

Natural Resources

NR had a lot of contracts come forward. They are our most progressive grant finders. Natural Resources staff brought forward six grants that assist in some funding to our fish hatchery, chinook analysis, and climate changes. Natural Resources work in our mountains with the streams and rivers, down into Puget Sound and also in the international ocean waters. Our fish travel long distances and our Natural Resources department works hard to find out what may be hindering their survival rates and then works hard to fix those negative problems.

One contract they have with WDFW is to thermal mark 200 adult salmon comprised of 100 chinooks and 100 coho salmon samples that are collected by the Tulalip Fisheries in areas 8A, 8D, and from the Snohomish basin natural chinook escapement of 2015. They will document their markings and try to figure out which hatchery or habitat the fish came from. Essentially tracking their location and where they were born at.

Another agreement NR has is with the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans on behalf of Fisheries and Oceans Canada (Canadian Fisheries). The project will analyze variations of chinook salmon sampled from the Snohomish River estuary and use microsatellite variation to assign individuals back to their parents. It will identify if the parent fish are a mix of wild or hatchery fish. Puget Sound chinook salmon are frequently present in Canadian waters and can be identified by genetic methods even if they do not carry a coded wire. Identifying fish is critical for calculation of survivals and straying in chinook salmon in Southern BC. Tulalip will benefit because we operate and co-manage several hatchery programs in our region that provide up to 90% of the annual tribal harvest of chinook, coho, and chum salmon. Understanding our river systems and migration is critical and important to our survival rates.

While Tulalip must rely on hatchery production for harvest due to currently depressed conditions of these stocks, we must monitor and adaptively manage based on interactions between hatchery and natural-origin fish which may affect natural population viability.

With all of this being said, we give a huge thank you to our Tulalip hatchery workers. They work around the clock all year to ensure our salmon will be in our rivers and Puget Sound. Without them, we would not be blessed with the current salmon we do have on our dinner tables. Hands raised up to our warriors who are protecting our fish and habitats, t'igWicid.

activity for our youth to practice traditions of our ancestors.

“For most of these kids, this was their first ever experience with pulling canoe. We teach them the skills and proper technique outside of the canoe first,” says Natasha. “We really focus on each kid’s individual comfort level, so that they enjoy their experiences in the water and in the canoe.”

The current age range is of club members is 5-years-old to 16-years-old, with a good mix of boys and girls. A goal of Natasha and her fellow instructors is to train the canoe club members to the point they can participate in the war canoe races circuit. Thus far, the future is bright as the kids have really taken to the water and enjoy the rigorous activity of war canoe racing during their practices.

“My kids had zero previous experience with canoe pulling, let alone being in a canoe until now,” says Nickie Richwine, mother of three daughters participating in the canoe club. “It’s been an honor to watch these kids excel on the water. I’m so thankful for their coaches Natasha and Tawny Fryberg, Alicia and Clayton Horne, and Ryan. They’ve really been a blessing for taking the time to teach and encourage our kids to be on the water.”

For those interested in getting their kids involved with Tulalip’s youth canoe club, please contact Natasha Fryberg at 425-422-9276.

Foreigner rocks Tulalip Amphitheatre

Article/photos by Micheal Rios

On the evening of Friday, July 8, legendary rock band Foreigner brought their formidable musical arsenal and enduring rock & roll anthems to the sold-out Tulalip Amphitheatre. With an energetic full capacity crowd on hand, Tulalip Resort Casino's annual Summer Series continued to live up to its hype of mixing top tier musicians and a stellar atmosphere.

The opening act on this night was well-known Native American recording artist and GRAMMY winner Star Nayeaa. A self-described truth teller through music, Star used her soulful and powerful voice to perform several of her moving songs that are in her own blues/pop/rock mold that is unmistakable her own. After her set, the crowd was visibly anxious for the main act, one of the most popular rock acts in the world, Foreigner.

The Foreigner lineup that took the stage at the Tulalip Amphitheatre didn't contain any original members from when the group took the rock & roll world by storm in the '70s and '80s. However, the current members did have the classic rock group's catalog of hit songs and an electric energy that was enough to keep the sold-out crowd on its feet, while dancing and singing along with the band for the entire hour and thirty minute set.

Kelly Hansen, the lead singer and rock vocalist, is an energetic front man, strutting and posing on stage from the jump, as the band opened their set with "Double Vision" and "Head Games". Taking it up a notch, Hansen literally took his energy to his fans when he hopped off stage and ran around the floor of the Amphitheatre high-fiving his beloved fans while performing "Cold as Ice".

The band put their signature stamp on an acoustic "Say You Will," with Tom Gimbel setting aside his guitar for a flute intro. Gimbel later took center stage to bring sax appeal to "Urgent," adding a prolonged solo, a highlight of the evening.

The crowd was blown away while witnessing a genuine classic rock & roll band making their legendary music with real deal instruments and bonafide talent, no gimmicks or vocal synthesizers like what's commonly found in the music industry today. Everything that goes into the Foreigner experience is authentic rock & roll, the way it was meant to be.

For the duration of the evening, the band provided their patented arena rock flair to the intimate venue that is the Tulalip Amphitheatre. Classic hit after classic hit was performed until the energy reached its pinnacle with a full-on jam session version of "Jukebox Hero".

The encore included "I Want to Know What Love Is," which featured the Voices Northwest choir (out of Everett) providing backup vocals. Foreigner donated $500 to the choir for appearing with the band and while the choir also sold Foreigner CDs at the concert to raise monies for Foreigner's charity partner, The Grammy Foundation. Both Foreigner and The Grammy Foundation are intent upon helping to keep music education available to students as part of the core curriculum in high schools throughout North America.

The night ended with a rousing performance of "Hot Blooded" that had everyone jumping, singing, and rocking all the way out. Forty years of excellent music artistry and a catalogue of hits that is unrivaled is what Foreigner brought to the live Tulalip Amphitheatre concert.

Right: Star Naya opened the show.

Dr. Veronica Tiller to Present How to Tell Your Story at WEWIN Conference

Dr. Veronica E. Tiller of the Jicarilla Apache Nation will be making several presentations at the WEWIN 2016 National Conference to be held at the Tulalip Hotel & Casino from August 14-17 in Tulalip, Washington. WEWIN stands for “Women Empowering Women for Indian Nations” and is headquartered in Klamath, California.

Dr. Tiller is the editor and publisher of the critically acclaimed Tiller’s Guide to Indian Country: Economic Profiles of American Indian Reservations. It is the most complete, widely used and relied upon reference book about today’s 567 American Indian and Alaska Native tribes.

Dr. Tiller’s 1-day workshop will be held on Sunday, August 14 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hotel & Casino. This workshop will be in-depth, very hands on, with actual writing exercises. It is a separate special presentation starting before the WEWIN Conference kicks off.

She will also be leading two workshops on Monday, August 15 as part of the WEWIN Conference – one during the morning session, and one during the afternoon session.

The title of the Sunday’s all-day presentation is “Telling Our Stories: Beginning Memoir: How to Tell Your Story.” The title of her Monday workshops is “Telling Your Story.”

Everyone has a story to tell. Whether your life is ordinary or unconventional, there’s always a story somewhere inside the fabric of great storytelling. In this workshop, you will learn how to focus and give your story shape and purpose.

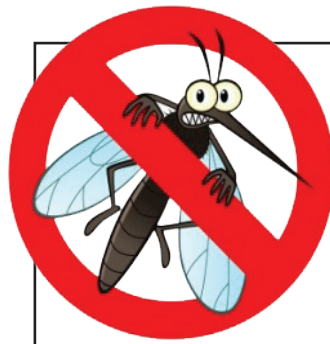

– Dr. Veronica Tiller

Dr. Tiller has written numerous books including A History of the Jicarilla Tribe. She is currently working on her own memoir and on a biography of a Jicarilla Apache Chief.

Come prepared to write in a supportive environment, to be inspired and to inspire others, to share your writing, and go home with a better understanding of using memoir as a way to tell your story. – Dr. Veronica Tiller

Safe use of insect repellents can minimize itching, scratching

Source: American Academy of Pediatrics; Submitted by Jason McKerry, MD, FAAP, Karen I Fryberg Tulalip Health Clinic

Summer is back, and so are mosquitoes. Before you reach for the insect repellent, review these tips from the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP). Apply repellents only to exposed skin or clothing, following the directions on the product label.

- The AAP recommends that products containing DEET not be used on children younger than 2 months old. Instead, use mosquito netting with an elastic edge to ensure a tight fit around a stroller.
- Products containing oil of lemon eucalyptus should not be used on children younger than 3 years old.
- Avoid products that contain both repellent and sunscreen because sunscreen generally should be reapplied more often than insect repellent.
- Do not use repellents under clothes.
- Never use repellents over cuts, wounds or irritated skin.
- Do not spray directly on the face; apply with your hands.

- Do not allow young children to apply repellents themselves.
- Do not use sprays in enclosed areas or near food.
- Reapply if washed off by sweating or getting wet.
- Avoid reapplying repellents on young children unless necessary.
- After returning indoors, wash treated skin with soap and water or have the child bathe.
- If your child develops a rash or other reaction from an insect repellent, wash the repellent off with soap and water and contact the child’s pediatrician or call the U.S. poison control center at 800-222-1222 for guidance.

Despite your best efforts, your child still may get a mosquito bite. If this happens, tell your child to try not to scratch the area, and dab it with alcohol or calamine. In addition, keep the area clean to prevent skin infections.
