

Need for Speed: Annual War Canoe Races return to Tulalip

By Kalvin Valdillez

The Tulalip Bay waters glistened in the sun as a number of skilled Indigenous canoe pullers sat at attention in sleek canoes, anticipating their signal to go. When the last racer reached the starting position, a loud air horn blew and they were off. From Totem Beach to Hermosa and back, the pullers swiftly moved through the waters, focusing on their timing and spacing. Several canoes were neck and neck as they made the final turn of the course and hit the last stretch. Loud cheers erupted from their families as they watched through binoculars at the bluff near Tulalip Youth Services and the Longhouse. The race ended in a close battle as

Class of 2019: Once future leaders of tomorrow, now leaders of the present

By Micheal Rios

On the evening of June 10, the Tulalip Youth Center was home to hopes and dreams aplenty as the graduating class of 2019 was honored with a stylish graduation banquet. Fifty-nine high school seniors, accompanied by their proud families and friends, convened to commemorate the rite of passage. There was entertainment, a catered buffet-style dinner, and plenty of motivational words offered from their

Three confirmed cougar sightings around Mission Highlands/Turk Road and Y-Site Areas

Encountering a cougar

- Relatively few people will ever catch a glimpse of a cougar much less confront one.
- If you come face to face with a cougar, your actions can either help or hinder a quick retreat by the animal.

Here are some things to remember:

- Stop, pick up small children immediately, and don't run. Running and rapid movements may trigger an attack. Remember, at close range, a cougar's instinct is to chase.
- Face the cougar. Talk to it firmly while slowly backing away. Always leave the animal an escape route.
- Try to appear larger than the cougar. Get above it (e.g., step up onto a rock or

- stump). If wearing a jacket, hold it open to further increase your apparent size. If you are in a group, stand shoulder-to-shoulder to appear intimidating.
- Do not take your eyes off the cougar or turn your back. Do not crouch down or try to hide.
- Never approach the cougar, especially if it is near a kill or with kittens, and never offer it food.
- If the cougar does not flee, be more assertive. If it shows signs of aggression (crouches with ears back, teeth bared, hissing, tail twitching, and hind feet pumping in preparation to jump), shout, wave your arms and throw anything you have available (water bottle, book, backpack). The idea is to convince the cougar that you - are not prey, but a potential danger.

- If the cougar attacks, fight back. Be aggressive and try to stay on your feet. Cougars have been driven away by people who have fought back using anything within reach, including sticks, rocks, shovels, backpacks, and clothing—even bare hands. If you are aggressive enough, a cougar will flee, realizing it has made a mistake. Pepper spray in the cougar's face is also effective in the extreme unlikelyhood of a close encounter with a cougar.

If you see a cougar immediately call Tribal Police Dispatch at 360-716-4608

Tulalip Fish and Wildlife will take steps to protect residential areas by capturing and relocating the cougar to a non-urban environment.

peers and elders to remind the graduates this is just the first step on the path to success.

The Marysville Getchell jazz band kicked-off the event by providing an upbeat mood while guests made the most of a whimsical photo booth setup, chatted with familiar faces and made their way to designated tables.

“Welcome to the 2019 graduate banquet!” opened emcee, Rochelle Lubbers. “We are so happy to have you all in Tulalip, in the heart of our community, on this special night to celebrate our students.”

“Your community, your tribe, and your families are so proud of you all,” added Chairwoman Teri Gobin. “As you take your next step on your journey, whether it’s a path towards college or work, your tribe is here to support you. We look forward to seeing what path you decide to take, who you choose to become, and how you can impact our community. My hands go up to each and every one you.”

Fittingly appropriate for the moment, Tulalip drummers and singers performed a song about remembering you are and where you come from. Then mother-daughter duo Deborah Parker and Kayah George offered a song representing the resilient blackfish.

“Our Tulalip Tribes symbol is the blackfish, or the orca. It represents endurance, strength and determination to make it through tough waters,” explained Deborah. “Looking out into the sea of graduates, that’s what I see. A pod of blackfish with that determination, that strength to navigate tough waters and make it here tonight to celebrate an amazing achievement.”

Graduating high school seniors Arnold Reeves and Kordelle Hammons each took to the podium and offered encouraging words to their fellow graduates. They reminisced over their favorite school experiences, spoke of hardships overcome, thanked their families and Tulalip community for always supporting them, and shared their excitement for great things yet to come.

“I believe we are all prepared for what’s to come next in our journeys, which is to become what our elders and ancestors have taught us to believe since kids – that we are the next great explorers, doctors, scientists, and athletes,” said Arnold, graduate of Marysville Pilchuck High School. “We have shown our young siblings, cousins, nieces and nephews that graduating high school is not only possible, but is important for growth and character development. We were once future leaders of tomorrow, but now we have become leaders of the present.”

Becoming leaders of the present may seem like a daunting task to most 18-year-olds who have grown accustomed to a daily consistency and structure provided by their k-12 education. However, for Indigenous youth, they've been bucking the trend and blazing new paths to educational success for years now without even realizing it. They've beaten the odds that said they would never graduate high school and overcome obstacles that could have easily taken them off their path.

For some students, their education and high school diploma meant not only proving everyone wrong, but also meant earning independence and the opportunity to find happiness in a world of their own creation.

"High school didn't mean much to me following the MP shooting, but then I realized I had to make my friends that are still here proud," shared Paul Shay, Jr. A graduate of Heritage High School who, after a rough start refocused his energies on a family of friends and sports, made 1st team All-State in basketball and now wants to become a psychologist to help tribal youth. "The journey I took through high school was very different than most other people. I've been through every struggle you can go through and survived to come out on top. My message to the youth is to never give up, no matter what. Always keep pushing and keep trying because at the end of the day living your best life is worth it."

Following an inspiration keynote speech by Nooksack Councilmember Katherine Romero, the high school seniors reminisced one last time while the memory-filled graduate video played on the big screen project. The graduates then strutted with pride down a red carpet to the loud applause of all in attendance.

Each graduate shook hands with Indigenous Education liaisons and Marysville School District representatives while walking across the stage to be presented with distinctive cultural items. The boys were gifted drums made by Adam Jimmy and Ryan Martin, while the girls received hand-made paddles courtesy of artist Ty Juvinel.

Special honorariums included the highly coveted Tulalip Tribes senior boy and girl of the year award.

Kiley Lakins, a graduate of Marysville Getchell, received the female student of the year honor. Having overcome adversity early on as a freshman, Kiley went on to challenge herself with AP courses in Language Arts and Literature during her upper-classman years. She helped her peers and community by volunteering at the Marysville food bank, Warm Beach events, and through peer tutoring. Her teachers described her as always demonstrating an incredible work ethic and constantly holding herself to a high standard. After getting a 4.0 for her entire senior year, Kiley finishes high school with an impressive 3.6 grade point average. She plans on attending the University of Washington in the fall.

"I really struggled my freshman year, but I refused to give up," reflected Kiley. "Now, I'm looking forward to the UW and pursuing a degree within the social sciences. Thank you for everyone who has believed me and encouraged me to always try my best."

Kordelle Hammons, a graduate of Marysville Pilchuck, received the male student of the year honor.

Julian Fryberg, Lake Stevens High School.

Jasmine Soderberg, Marysville Pilchuck.

Selisa Williams, Marysville Pilchuck.

Kecia Zackuse, Marysville Getchell.

He was noted as taking advanced or honors level classes since middle school and always excelled. One teacher said, "He has proven to be a positive role model for others and has constantly demonstrated sincere desire to use his individual talents and abilities in service of those around him." Kordelle is looking forward to a 6 ½ year medical program at American University of Antigua (in the Caribbean) where he can earn his Associates, Bachelors and Medical degrees.

"My elders and parents have always told me that when you go to college, go far, because the reservation will always be here for you when you come back. When you come back bring the knowledge you have been given and give it back to your people," shared Kordelle. "This is something I hope to do by becoming a surgeon and coming back to the Tulalip Reservation."

Congratulations to all those Tulalip students who put in the hard work and dedication to earn their high school diploma. Chasing a dream requires your efforts and passion. The hard work isn't over now that you have graduated, it's just the beginning as you now prepare for the new challenges waiting in the next chapter of life. Good luck and congratulations!

the first three canoes crossed the finish line within milliseconds of each other.

“Hell of a race,” exclaimed the first place racer as he shook the hands of the second and third place pullers. “It was a close one. It was fun though, great pulling out there!”

Over the weekend of June 8-9, several Coast Salish canoe families gathered at Tulalip Bay for the annual War Canoe Races. The popular two-day event attracts hundreds of Native pullers every year. Participants of all ages competed in a number of contests throughout the weekend including singles, doubles, 6-man and 11-man races. Many Coast Salish tribes, bands and canoe families were well represented during the event as they rapidly pulled through the Tulalip Bay waters for a chance to take home first place trophies and bragging rights until next year.

“This is our first time coming to Tulalip and it’s very peaceful here, it’s a really awesome setting,” said racer, Justin Williams. “I’ve been racing since I was a little boy because it’s been a tradition that has been carried on from great-grandfather to my grandfather to father to me, and I’m now bringing it to my children. I love the family time we’re able to spend together while racing. It’s a great event and I look forward to racing here in upcoming years.”

War canoes are built for speed and are much lighter and narrower compared to traditional cedar dugout canoes. As you may know, canoes are an integral piece to the Northwest Indigenous culture and were utilized to travel to gatherings as well as for fishing and whaling trips for centuries. The canoes used for racing, however, were developed during intertribal warfare as a way to raid each other’s villages. As time passed, the canoes became used for the traditional spectator sporting event that has been passed down within tribes for several generations.

Today, canoe families travel from tribe to tribe every summer, competing in a circuit of war canoe races. The races made a return to Tulalip during the warm months of 2015 after nearly a thirty-year hiatus. Each year the event continues to garner large participation, and the bay has become a favorite course on the circuit amongst the racers.

“We would like to thank the Tulalip Tribes and the race committee for hosting us year after year and inviting all the canoe families to share your beautiful bay,” stated Lona Johnson of the Rikkole Cree Canoe Club. “We paddle to uplift our families and our communities; we paddle for healing and to keep our canoe way of life alive. I think it’s important to keep our canoes on the water because it helps our people live a healthy lifestyle and gives us a healthy outlet. The number one rule is to always have fun and that’s what we strive to do; lead by example, go out and do the best we can and always have fun.”

Why Study Nursing?

Submitted by Jeanne Steffener, Higher ED

Do you have a kind and nurturing nature? Do you enjoy making a difference in people's lives? Nursing can be a meaningful career for you with opportunities, challenges and rewards as you assist to improve the wellbeing of people who are sick. Most of us have encountered a nurse who was so kind and uplifting as they ministered to our loved one or us personally.

With nursing, you can really make a difference. Nursing is really all about the patient and this career helps save lives, brings happiness to individuals and families and comforts those in need. "Registered nurses (RNs) provide and coordinate patient care, educate patients and the public about various health conditions and provide advice and emotional support to patients and their family members."¹ With people getting sick daily, skilled nursing professionals not only have the knowledge but a compassionate heart and a vocation to serve.

Registered nurses usually take one of three educational paths: a Bachelor of Science degree in nursing (BSN), an associate's degree in nursing (ADN), or a diploma from an approved nursing program. Registered nurses must be licensed. Most BSN programs take four years to complete while an ADN program takes two years. If you are already a RN, you can enroll in a RN to BSN program to pursue your bachelor of nursing degree. This program is specifically geared for RNs who have an associate's degree or nursing diploma. This path takes 2-3 years to complete.

In any nursing program you choose, you will have the opportunity to study sciences such as: anatomy, physiology, microbiology, psychology, chemistry and sociology. You will also have hands-on, in-field experience through supervised clinical training. By choosing a nursing career, you gain entry to a pathway to a long-term, successful career in the health care field.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics job outlook states that "Employment of registered nurses is projected to grow 15 percent from 2016 to 2026, much faster than the average for all occupations. Growth will occur for a number of reasons, including an increased emphasis on preventive care; growing rates of chronic conditions, such as diabetes and obesity; and demand for health-care services from the baby-boom population, as they live longer and more active lives. Shortages are projected to intensify as Baby Boomers begin retiring. The RN workforce is expected to grow from 2.9 million in 2016 to 3.4 million in 2026. This is an increase of 438,100 or 15%".

Job opportunities for nurses are abundant. Nursing professionals can work in physician's offices, clinics, hospitals, emergency centers, home healthcare services, universities, companies, factories, nursing care facilities and in private homes with special needs.

If you have a calling to become a nurse or are interested in other areas of the field, please call the Higher ED staff at 360-716-4888 or email us at highered@tulaliptribes-nsn.gov for assistance with this exciting career opportunity.

Update – Senior Center renovation, bad news once again

No notification has been sent to the elders or seniors advising us the Board has entered into another contract for the renovation project and giving the contractors until the end of August to complete the project. There are also new conditions on revisions on the renovation project. I only heard this through the grapevine so I haven't a clue on what changes were made.

The elders or seniors have never been advised by the Board or staff about what the original renovation project involved nor have we been provided with any information or seen any of the building plans and apparently this was only provided to the staff. I guess they think we wouldn't understand!!

Also I wrote to the Board about the bulky heavy cloth chairs the Casino donated to the Senior Center and have asked management to check into ordering new chairs that can be easily moved and cleaned but was told the Board only allowed enough money for tables. The Senior Center already has tables. Anyone with any knowledge knows that heavy cloth chairs are too much for elders to move and are unsanitary. The Board has money to donate to other entities so they could spare enough money for new chairs for the Senior Center if it is every finished.

Elders keep hearing from the Board how we should be cared for and honored but this past actions, by not notifying the elders/seniors about the building renovation and having "no money" to purchase new chairs while they went ahead and did remodeling on the Boys and Girls Club sure looks like we are on the low end of the totem pole.

The elders/seniors need to get together and have a meeting with the Board and have them explain to us what exactly is being done at the Senior Center as not once have they every notified us on what is being renovated. They could at least send us a written notice and let us know what is being done.

I just thought I should let you know about the renovation as when we are at our basket class on Tuesday and Arts and Craft class on Thursday continuously have some elders/seniors stop in and ask where the staff are as a lot of the elders/seniors haven't been told the staff are at the Dining Hall.

I am truly disgusted on how we are never notified when our programs or are changed with no input or notifications.
