Quil Ceda 5th Graders celebrate Salmon Homecoming

By Micheal Rios

“We are honored to be on the ancestral homeland and waters of the First People of the Salish Sea. Thank you Coast Salish for allowing us all to call this beautiful place home,” was the opening statement made by Salmon Homecoming Alliance staff as approximately 500 fourth and fifth-grade students from local tribal schools arrived outside the Seattle Aquarium on the morning of September 12.

PREPARED, NOT SCARED

National Preparedness Month 2019

Did you know? September is National Preparedness Month. Tulalip Emergency Management encourages family and community disaster preparedness and emergency planning now and throughout the year.

Preparing your family for an emergency is as simple as a conversation over dinner. It's important to include kids in the disaster planning process. Plan how you will communicate during an emergency. Review topics like: Sending a text message; Emergency contact numbers; Dialing 9-1-1. Review your family emergency plan

How can my family and I be more prepared?

together so that they know what to do even if you are not there. <http://www.ready.gov/plan>

How will I get the latest information?

Text "STORM" to short code 30644 for quick local storm/weather/road closures sent directly to you
Follow Tulalip News FB for the latest details on local events
FEMA Mobile App, real time alerts, emergency safety tips, emergency shelters/disaster recovery centers

More ways to get involved:

Take classes in lifesaving skills, such as CPR/AED and first aid, or in emergency response, like CERT.

WARRIOR WALK

By Micheal Rios

According to the World Health Organization, over 800,000 people die by suicide annually, representing 1 person every 40 seconds. It is the 2nd leading cause of death in the world for those aged 15-24 years old, and suicide among males is 4x higher than among females.

Taking one's own life is the result of a convergence of risk factors including psychological and social risk factors often combined with experiences of trauma and loss. Although an often taboo subject, one of the best preventative measures is breaking the silence and encouraging those in distress to tell their own story in their own way and at their pace.

Tulalip is all too familiar with suicide, especially among the younger generation. By engaging in active listening and reaching out to those who are vulnerable we can build a more resilient and stronger community. On September 10, more than 150 supportive individuals came together to observe and publicize National Suicide Prevention Day with a community strengthening Warrior Walk.

Wearing bright yellow shirts, the symbolic color for suicide prevention, with bold text that read 'I am alive and strong', the group convened at the Dining Hall. While there, all concerned citizens had an opportunity to create signs with positive affirmations and empowering messages, such as 'believe in yourself', 'help others succeed', and 'you are loved'. While most signs were uplifting in nature, some were more heartfelt by being dedicated to the memories of loved ones taken too soon by suicide.

"[This] walk is a suicide prevention walk in honor of prevention month. We named it Warrior Walk because we are warriors," explained youth councilmember Marisa Joseph. "It was attended by tribal members and family members who have been affected by suicide.

"This is important to me because suicide has affected the Tribes and my life, personally," she added. Marisa walked with a sign that read 'in loving memory of Michael Lee Joseph, 34'.

In collaboration with Community Health, Education, Youth Council and other departments, all were welcome to attend the powerful walk for suicide prevention and awareness. Whether an individual’s reason was in memory of loved ones lost, in support of those who struggle in silence, or to showcase strength and empowerment, the yellow tidal wave that started at the Dining Hall and ended at the Early Learning Academy’s gymnasium meant a great deal to those who needed it.

“To me, the Warrior Walk meant healing, not only for individuals but for our community,” shared walk participant Shawn Sanchey. “It’s bringing our strength together to help uplift one another. It showed our youth and our people that they’re loved and the community is always there for you. It’s important to me our younger generation understands that we are always here for them.”

Reaching out to those most at risk in the community is critical to preventing self-harm. If you are worried about someone, please reach out and ask them, “are you okay?” By simply checking in with them and offering non-judgmental support you can make a difference. It is important to know that people in distress are often not looking for specific advice, but merely to be listened to with compassion and empathy.

“Walking together in strength and support for the youth, our elders and community members in need of healing is unity,” said Seilavena Williams, patient support executive assistant. “[There are] so many departments and divisions working together with our community in mind. By coming together the community members could feel that they are welcomed, supported and loved.”

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline 1-800-273-8255 is a crisis resource that provides free and confidential support 24/7. Suicide is not inevitable for anyone. By starting the conversation, providing support, and directing help to those who need it, we can prevent suicides and save lives together.

The gathering was a pre-celebration known as Salmon Homecoming School Days. A public event at Waterfront Park where interactive presentations and displays attract interest and attention on how to explore ways that support the cooperative spirit of salmon restoration and protection.

For the fifth consecutive year all Quil Ceda Tulalip Elementary (QCT) 5th grade classes were active participants. The students were excited to spend a day out of the classroom at the Seattle waterfront where they were given an opportunity to experience everything the Aquarium had to offer, while enjoying a variety of salmon-based learning activities.

“This is an amazing opportunity for our students to continue learning about other people’s cultures and to identify with other tribes in the area,” explained 5th grade teacher Ms. Hansen. “Not a lot of schools get invited here, so it means a lot for us as a school to continue to have a role. This is a unique event that lets our kids be proud and true to who they are.”

Interesting fact, the Seattle Aquarium is the ninth largest aquarium in the United States by attendance and among the top five paid visitor attractions in the Puget Sound region. Bolstering those stats were an additional 100 or so Quil Ceda students, accompanied by teachers and chaperones, who made the mini journey to the region’s premier resource for hands-on marine experiences.

“The coolest thing I learned was octopuses huddle up in a corner when its bed time,” said 5th grade Charlee Martin. “I got to see a bunch of baby sharks and even a blow fish. What I’ll remember most is touching a star fish and sea anemones.”

During their day-long excursion, they students wondered from exhibit to exhibit eagerly looking for aquatic friends similar to Sponge Bob and Nemo. And when they found them, the tech savvy 10-year-olds were quick to pull out their cell phones and take the all-important selfie.

Being salmon are often viewed as the traditional food source of Coast Salish peoples, and the Tulalip Tribes moniker is ‘People of the Salmon’, it is only fitting that the cohort of 5th graders got to learn much about their cultural icon on the trip.

“We got to look at all kinds of fish and even touch some of them!” beamed 5th grader Noi Sisinga. “I learned about fish’s life-cycle, like how they start as eggs then learn to camouflage themselves as kids. Then when they become spawning adult fish they swim home to make babies.”

Inside the aquarium, a number of Salmon Homecoming learning stations were setup and made as kid-friendly as could be. Marine biologists, aquatic experts, and salmon advocates did their best to keep the energetic youths attention while explaining salmon lifecycles and ecosystems, while adding in the cultural importance of their habitat protection and restoration.

Concluding Salmon Homecoming School Days was a pair of tribal song and dance groups from Lummi Nation and Muckleshoot who shared their teachings with everyone in attendance. Several of the Quil Ceda students could be seen singing along while Lummi performed a song very similar to one sang every morning at QCT.

“My favorite memory of the trip is when our students got to sit and listen to other Native youth drumming and singing as part of the Salmon Homecoming festivities,” said student advocate Malory Simpson. “It is always a beautiful thing to see our students witness other Native students practicing their traditional teachings. It helps to reinforce the ideas and values that our students are being taught at Quil Ceda Tulalip.”

We would like to thank everyone who attended the Unity coastal jam

There was great songs and dances shared. We would like to thank Lummi, Westshore, Swinomish, Muckleshoot and all of our Tulalip Tribes drummers and singers who attended along with all of our Indigenous relatives, we support you. Let's continue to gather, grow and support each other so that we can have a strong future for the future generations.

We are looking forward to seeing everyone September 27th 4pm at Heritage High School for the next Unity coastal jam. Keep in mind this one will be a walk the cause is to "Get Drugs Off Our Rez". We will start the walk at 4pm from Heritage.

Don't forget to bring your Drums and walking shoes we are looking forward to seeing you."

Elder requests and concerns

- A bus with a restroom, due to traveling long periods of time.
- Senior center building construction, reports should be provided to elders
- Need a better process to get handicap items faster. They used to be issued and on-hand, this has changed.
- Elder coats for traveling. This is important to show where you're from when traveling to other tribes. Please consider 3 designs from carving shed people for coats for elders to pick a design from, if coats become available.
- When you become an elder, you have earned the right to speak, and the wishes of them be respected enough to make it happen. Concerns are to help them and they need to be treated with a higher respect than currently given.

- Elder veterans should be called on to speak first, then elders at any or all tribal meetings, then general membership.
- Request for a board member to meet with them (commission) monthly to listen to their requests, issues, concerns, etc. This is important for them.
- There is a need for an elders secretary to take written notes, for better BOD communication. Seeyasub report for elders might be a good idea.

Information for elders:

- Elder building update, when will it be done?
- Gathering Hall. When will it be done, who for and what, and holds how many people?

- New marina building, when will it be completed?
- New casino, when will it be completed and the cost?

I'm not the in between for elders to BOD, and have not intended and would never direct BOD in any shape or fashion. Very respectfully I was asked by older elders, so I am passing this on and in my teaching I cannot say no if it's a respectful request. I'm a young elder but am one and do need to listen to older elders.
